THE PRINCESS AND THE WAND.
ONCE upon a time a beautiful baby Princess was born. As the child grew up it became more beautiful. There happened to be a very young, handsome Prince so that they could not speak. Soon the witch fell asleep. Then the Prince tried to get her wand, but just as he touched it, the witch woke up with a start, and the Prince ran back to the cell the witch had put him in. As the witch fell asleep the second time, the Prince went again to the witch chamber. He stole the wand slowly and then ran back to the Prince. Then he waved the wand and they could speak as plainly as ever. They went outside and waving the wand again, there stood a beautiful castle made of gold. And there stood the beautiful Queen. They were married and lived happily till their deaths.

As for the witch, having lost her wand, she went to sleep and never woke up.

MY DEAR COUSINS—The snow that covers the ground, is lots of fun for kiddies to play in, but it is not nearly so much fun for the birds who stay here during the winter. We always think that when winter comes all the birds fly away to the warm South lands, but in reality there are a large number that stay all winter. The bluejays, so brilliantly blue and white, the red-breasted flickers, woodpeckers, purple nuthatches, goldfinches, chickadees and nuthatches are some that are hardy enough to stay despite cold winds who had once seen the Princess and had fallen in love with her.

Now, I will begin to tell you the most important part. The Princess did very much want to marry the Prince. The King heard of the love between them. He didn't like it at all and ordered her to be beaten. The servants did not want to, because they all loved her, but the King cried: "Do it at once!" So they had to.

and snow. Their only great difficulty is in getting food. The snow covers the ground, and the trees are no longer filled with juicy fruits and delicious (so think the birds) insects. So that these brave little fellows may live to be merry in the spring and raise busy, happy families in the summer, they must be fed by people. There are many kind and thoughtful people who make a point of regularly feeding the birds. I am sure that my Kiddie cousins are among these. Every little crumb, spread on window sills, or even thrown on roofs or far the less traveled streets, spins with the birds. Another thing that they love is sugar, and if a little piece is fastened securely out of a window there is every chance in the world for the little verse.

A little with a yellow bill, Hopped upon my window sill, To come true for you, COUSIN ELEANOR.

ABOUT OLD NEW YORK.

CREETON, N. Y.

It was the familiar sound in New York City eighty years ago. It was the groaning of the town pump! Did you know that once upon a time the only place where the people of New York could obtain water was from the pump? In those days there was no water running from faucets in the houses; people either carried it from the pumps or bought it from peddlers. And they were very particular about having their water come from favorite pumps. Some people thought that the water from the pump at the corner of Roosevelt and Quatham Streets was the best in the world for making tea, and were willing to pay quite high prices to the peddlers for a quart. Others declared that the water from the pump in Washington Square had a decidedly better flavor than any other, and went long distances to get it, although there were many pumps scattered here and there nearer to them.

At last, however, they realized that pumps were not very sanitary, and so set about having a city supply of filtered water to be carried into the houses. This was a great innovation, something quite different from what they were accustomed to. It was decided that the water from the Croton watershed was the best in the neighborhood, for it drained a region rich in springs and ponds and clear, running brooks. The best engineers in the country worked upon it, designing the brick tunnel and the beautiful aqueducts over ravines and rivers. High Bridge is one of these.

In 1841 the new system was finished. There was an immense celebration of the opening of the new water supply. Beautiful and fantastic fountains danced in City Hall Park and impressive speeches were delivered. There were other rejoicings throughout the city, for the people were glad to welcome the wonderful water that was to be more cleanly and sanitary as well as more convenient than the old-time pumps. An abundance of water was flowing in every house, for the tunnel brought 100,000,000 gallons every day. Later, however, because the city grew so large that more was needed, another tunnel was built. This one is through almost solid rock for the entire thirty miles between Croton and Harlem, and carries 200,000,000 gallons each day. And this is why there is plenty of pure, clean water for every kiddie and every grown person in the city.

LETTERS FROM KIDDIES.

DEAR COUSIN ELEANOR: I enjoy reading your letters in the World Kiddie Klub very much. Trust I will be able to see your next page. Please send me a pin, as I would like to join your club.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—My division of President Wilson, Lieut. George E. Rule, who was convicted at Camp McCellan, Ala., on charges of selling his services to enlisted men to fraudulently obtain their discharge, has been restored to duty.

Nature Certainly Smiled when she created the hidden flavors of ripe white corn as developed in POST TOASTIES

But it took the wonderful TOASTIE process to bring out the flavor, that makes these golden flakes so superior to ordinary corn flakes.

A Clothing Maker Rids His Shelves of Heavy Coatings

Men's Ulsters—$49.50—Underprice

600 Fine Big Coats

It is very late in the season for a clothing manufacturer to be making winter ulsters; but when a man has a large stock of coatings on hand, he can't always carry it over. Working capital is better than slow moving stock. So—This maker came to us with his proposition. He wanted to make 600 of these fine coats at a substantial reduction in price. He knew we could use them if the price was low enough—and it was.

Double-breasted—Wanamaker Type

And a double-breasted ulster-type coat of all-wool frieze is as fine a coat for cold, stormy days as any man could ask for. Better still, the sturdy character of the fabric is a guarantee of service that softer, spongy fabrics cannot give. The coats have satin yoke and sleeve linings, and every feature about them bears evidence of the Wanamaker way of tailoring.

Coats in regular stock earlier in the season at $65 and $70 were no better. That tells the tale.

Furnishings at Half and Less

Angora Sweaters, $10
Were $22.50 to $25. Just 46 of them—imported qualities—small sizes. Women can wear these nicely.

Soft Collars, 15c
Were 35c each. About 2,100 of them—pique in various styles.

Fancy Shirts, 95c
Were $1.70 and $1.95. Mostly in sizes 16½ and 17. Lucky man if your size is here, for the days of 95c shirts are all but gone.

Four-in-hands, 25c
Were 50c. 2,400 open-end four-in-hand ties in a variety of patterns and colorings. Think of it—25c for neckwear these days.

Bath Robes, $5
Were $10. About 100 of them—made of imported terry cloth, with kimono sleeves. Women can wear these.

Wool Vests, $2.50
Were $5. Only 17 of them. If you need one—come early.
